MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence
FROM: Director of Central Intelligence
SUBJECT: Structural Change Paper

25X1

[redacted] response to my comments on this paper on Structural Change is a first-class piece of work. I agree with your plan for disseminating it informally to a couple dozen selected people. I would hope to get comment and reaction from some of them and then consider whether we should, after seeing what other people have to say, make whatever modifications might be indicated and give it a wider circulation. Some of the implications of [redacted] thinking are so important that I am not too concerned about offending some people, although I think we should ensure that we are on solid ground and give no more offense than necessary to properly alert their thinking it may be creeping up on them.

NOTE TO: Director of Central Intelligence

Bill -

[redacted] has responded to your comments on his paper on Structural Change particularly with respect to fleshing out some of the questions at the end along with a few answers. He also, at my request, has drafted a scope note for the paper. Because of the content of the paper and particularly some of the aspects of [redacted] style which would surely be offensive to some individuals whose institutional oxen are gored, I believe we should simply disseminate this paper informally as a typescript to a couple dozen selected people around town. A published paper with wide dissemination would be easy to quote out of context and thereby create problems for us.

What do you think of [redacted] changes and do you agree with my approach for dealing with this?
